My dad taught for over 20 years. When he restarted, he spent 3–4 months just finding learners, word of mouth eventually saved him. But then the admin followed him home: messages, payments, cancellations, reschedules. He taught 40 hours a week, and was mentally on call 24/7.

Win Norwich, then London.

Start in Norwich

Why Norwich first:

- → We're based in Norwich
- → Two universities: UEA and Norwich University of the Arts
- → Then London, where we already know a lot of instructors and driving schools

Students are our first learners: a new intake every September, most without a licence.

2.86m

29%

of 17–20-year-olds held a full licence in 2023. The majority are still pre-licence.

Schools are our channel.

ONE DEAL: CHILLED DRIVING SCHOOL

1 school = 23 instructors + ~500 learners

At full pricing from 2027, one school this size is worth about £25.7k ARR, of which £8k is subscription today.

23 instructors × £1,116 a year: £348 membership + 2% of 20 hours a week at £40/hr over 48 weeks.

One listing

Learners see the school once, then pick an instructor or get matched to one who is free.

A live board

Every instructor's day in one place: who is on a lesson, who is free next and which requests are waiting.

BUILT FOR CHILLED · NOV 2026

The office assigns the lessons

Every request comes to the school's office first. It sees who is free, who will be nearest after their previous lesson and every diary side by side, then books it.

The office books phone callers from WhatsApp

When a learner rings the school, the office taps New caller and books them with the instructor who is free first. The caller is texted a link to confirm.

Timesheets and invoices

Hours taught by each instructor, day by day, and the school's weekly invoices to its instructors worked out and sent.

One set of rules

The school's cancellation policy and intro offers apply to every one of its instructors.

WHERE WE ARE

Newdryve estimates. Per instructor a year: £348 subscription + 2% of 20 lesson hours a week at £40/hr over 48 weeks (£768). Figures include the 2% learner fee, which starts in early 2027. Subscription-only ARR is £348 per instructor a year.

The hard questions.

Why won't TotalDrive just copy this?

They sell admin software to instructors who already have learners. Copying us means getting learners in each town, verifying instructors and charging late cancellations to cards, not adding a calendar.

Why won't AA or RED crush you?

Their instructors are franchisees who pay the brand a weekly fee. Newdryve is for the 86% who are independent.

Why will instructors pay £29/month?

Around 8,600 already pay for TotalDrive, for admin alone. We also bring learners and charge late cancellations: one new £40 lesson covers the month.

Why no commission?

A cut of every lesson is what instructors pay elsewhere (25% on EzLicence). A flat £29 is cheaper for anyone teaching more than a few lessons a month, and it's predictable revenue for us.

What stops them booking each other directly?

After the first booking they could go direct, but their diary, progress notes, cancellation charges, earnings, receipts and tax exports are all in Newdryve.

Is this venture scale?

About £42m a year in the UK at our pricing (37,441 independents × £1,116). Then Europe, and insurance and vehicle products for the same instructors.
